The Newmarket Public Library Presents:

The Great New England Sea Serpent

Saturday, October 5th at 11am

An enormous creature has been lurking off the coast of New England for centuries, at least according to numerous accounts. It has been seen by Native Americans, ship captains, clergymen, government officials, and residents of seacoast villages. Are these stories believable? Is this mammoth sea monster fact or fable? Were these witnesses lying or were they mistaken in what they saw? Or were they really seeing some still unidentified giant snake-like sea animal? Michael Faiella will examine the legend and reality of the great New England sea serpent. Michael is a retired public school history teacher. He grew up on an island where the creature was spotted (according to Scientific American) in the 19th century.
